FIRST AMERICAN FIELD SERVICES EXTENDS EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES TO AMERICA'S STRONG VETERANS' WORKFORCE TO DELIVER BEST SERVICES TO CUSTOMERS

-- Veterans to offer Their Experience, Training and Dedication to Customers as Part of First American's Contractor/Vendor Network --

DALLAS, MONTH, 2008 – First American Field Services has taken an additional step in strengthening service to its customers by creating business opportunities for active and retired veterans and their families in the field services' industry.

“There are more than 200 military installations and more than 935,000 active duty personnel in the markets serviced by First American and we are diversifying our recruitment strategies to further create opportunity for this truly unique workforce as small business owners and independent contractors,” said Mark Velazquez, vice president of operations with First American Field Services. “We fully understand the significance of the proven training and dedication show by the veteran community and are excited to embrace this community as a valued part of expanding family of employees.”

By working closely with the First American Veterans Council the company is looking to develop alternative career opportunities for America's veterans and their family members in performing property inspection, property preservation and yard maintenance services.

First American's Veterans Council was created to provide a supporting environment for new and current veteran employees and to develop various educational and recruitment programs. The Council supports other veterans groups, the VA hospital, and welcomes home troops from service abroad.
